Penguin Classics e-books give you the best possible editions of Charles Dickens's novels, including all the original illustrations, useful and informative introductions, the definitive, accurate text as it was meant to be published, a chronology of Dickens's life and notes that fill in the background to the book. This Penguin Classics edition of The Pickwick Papers also includes a map of the Pickwickians' tours. Where Angels Fear to Tread (1905) follows two women to Italy: the widowed Lilia Herriton and her traveling companion Caroline Abbott. Lilia falls passionately in love with the country, and also with a young Italian man. Her decision to remain in Italy enrages her dead husband's family, who send her brother-in-law to fetch her back. Invisible Women should propel women into action. It should also be compulsory reading for men". Christina Patterson, Sunday Times. "Invisible Women takes on the neglected topic of what we don't know - and why. The result is a powerful, important and eye-opening analysis of the gender politics of knowledge and ignorance. An important book written with humour and flair". Robert Webb. "The thoroughness of Invisible Women doesn't detract from its absolute readability. This is entertaining, scholarly and so very important." Adam Rutherford. "Here are the facts!" I purchased this book looking for an anthology to teach for my Women and Humor Writing Course. I didn't find the content I needed, but the introduction by Regina Barreca is well-written and I assigned that to my class. For the quarter, we debated what IS women's humor? In the end we realized we preferred the term Gender to Women, and that humor just as often reinforces stereotypes as breaks them. Perhaps it is a misprint, but my copy of the book is titled The Penguin Book Of Women's Humor--not About; and so, I was misled to believe the purpose of these quotes was to be funny. I'm nitpicking though, because that quote is only mildly bothersome in comparison to a great deal of passages. (After all, at least there is relevance.) This anthology looks at the genre of women's humour and illuminates the ways in which women's humour differs from men's. It aims to destroy the assumption that humour is universal and shows it instead as marked by subjectivity and bound by gender. The book contains essays, short stories, dramas, and poems, on a range of subjects, from a variety of women including Anita Loos, Mae West, Moms Mabley, Erma Bombeck, Lily Tomlin, Elayne Boosler, Jane Austen, Emily Dickinson, Louisa May Alcott and Dorothy Parker.
