Analysis of the standardization of terminology of lower urinary tract dysfunction: report from the standardisation Sub-Committee of the International Continence Society. Two hundred and forty-eight women with lower urinary tract complaints who were referred to a special gynecologic urology and urodynamic unit had static cystourethrograms (CUG's) performed as part of their diagnostic workups. In women with urodynamic evidence of true anatomic sphincter-weakness stress urinary incontinence (SUI), there was a poor correlation with standard CUG interpretations of SUI as suggested by Green (Types I and II).
