Understand Myself. Products. Personality Assessment. Most of the work done to understand personality has been conducted on the adjectives that people use to describe each other (words such as happy, sad, nice, hard-working, and creative). Psychometric specialists have given extensive lists of such adjectives—sometimes as single words, sometimes as phrases, and sometimes as sentences—to many thousands of people, and used statistical techniques referred to earlier to determine how the words group together. Understanding one’s self is awareness. There is a level of awareness and a moment of realization. For an ordinary man, one cannot be 24/7 be self-aware. I can pat myself if I can be self-aware say 10 minutes a day. That is the level of challenge.
